MOCKING BIRDS—

I awoke with the first flush of dawn.
While the mocking-bird out on the lawn
His pean was shrilling, unresting and filling
My heart with the promise of morn,
Mocking-bird.
My heart with the promise of morn.

I lay while the gathering light
Was surely dawning the night
And, tenderly swelling, thy music was telling
Of happiness, love and delight,
Mocking-bird.
Of happiness, love and delight.

I lay till a lance of flame,
Dashed swift with the passionate aim
Of sunlight, was launched at the cottonwood branched.
When the voice of thy melody came,
Mocking-bird.
The voice of thy melody came.
—Edward McQueen Gray, in "The Mocking-Bird."

Jury of Women Will Try Mother

Chicago, April 22.—(UP)—Twelve prominent Chicago women leaders, aroused by "parental irresponsibility," agreed to sit as a Municipal Court jury in the trial of the mother of 15-year-old Coletta Liston, who last week shocked a connoisseur's jury of noted educators with her grammar-school code of gin-drinking night life.

The defendant is Mrs. Jane Liston, who is charged with violation of the compulsory education law. Her daughter was a member of the school liquor party last Saturday which ended in the death of George Lux. The testimony of Coletta and other members of the party resulted in an extensive airing of the school liquor problem.

Under the leadership of Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, women leaders arranged with Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson to hear the case of Mrs. Liston tomorrow. Judge Erickson announced the verdict of the jury would be recognized and that if the jury so recommended he would hold Mrs. Liston on a more serious charge of contributing to delinquency.

W. C. O. F. TO MEET THURSDAY EVENING—

Fine Straws Add Elegance to the Latest Paris Millinery

BY FRANCES PAGET
Copyright, 1929, by Style Sources
New York, April 22.—(UP)—What Paris creates in millinery has always something of more than passing interest so with this in mind there follows a rather detailed description of models from two prominent Paris modistes.

In the collection of Camille Roger, straw assumes a position of chief importance for town wear, shown in rather elegant styles, while for sports, this house is still faithful to felt.

Fine straws in particular are approved; panama laque, bakou, akatou. This last straw could also be put in the category of exotic straws, it has, however, this peculiarity, that, like panama laque, it is shiny. Fancy rough straws are also prominent in this collection, in large weaves, light in weight, and woven with a mixture of several colors.

Out of fine threads of crim, Camille Roger has made a sort of lace, which is used for the brims of certain models, and is ornamented with small macarons of azou, which, as has been previously explained, is a round straw like the sticks of a broom.

For the moment, velvet ribbon is the favorite trimming of this house; it surrounds the crown and ties in back or side back in bows, which fall on the brim or sometimes fall lightly over the edge. Rather wide velvet ribbon is often used in several shades on the same hat. In cravatations of shantung in straw are beginning to be noticed in certain models.

Panama laque, an exotic straw, in a fine weave with a lacquer finish, is used to a great extent by Marie Alphonse, along with another light straw, called parassol, which is already known. This, however, does not interfere with the use of felt for models on which, like all the others in this collection, trimming is reduced to a minimum. Fancy shapes usually replace ornamentation, however, certain models admit a touch of ribbon or a tiny feather, extremely small and inconspicuous, as trim.

In this collection, the movements of the shallow crown are interesting. Such effects are still being accentuated by the fact that the brim, instead of being joined at the bottom of the crown, is carried up fairly high. It is noticeable that on certain hats, the crown is shorter on one side than on the other, following the line of the brim, which shows clearly one side of the profile and at the same time covers the other completely.

YOUR CHILDREN
By Olive Roberts Barton
© 1929 by NEA Service Inc.

Should children say "Yes, ma'am" or "Yes, sir?"

I shall answer that question by asking another. "Should grownups say it?"

If not, then children shouldn't for manners and all the amenities should, with trifling exceptions, be the same for all of us. Age does not alter etiquette.

Sometimes a purely colloquial or regional custom makes a custom correct that would not be accepted favorably elsewhere.

I have heard the most exquisite cavaliers of a gallant past, particularly from certain sections of the south, say "Yes, ma'am" and "Yes, sir." The words fall like music from their lips. Certainly no one could tell them they were wrong.

Army etiquette has never relinquished the "sir." Military schools observe it and other schools for boys have fallen in line. It is the remark courteous from one gentleman to another he be sixteen or sixty. I certainly do like that "sir." It carries no menace toward democracy—rather the opposite.

It All Depends—

Now as for children I should not teach them to say "Yes, ma'am," ever, or "Yes, sir," either, except as I say, when a boy addresses a man. Even then it is not necessary.

"Yes, Mr. Brown," "Yes, Mr. Brown," are much better for children. "Yes, Mother," "Yes, Father," a teacher should be addressed by name also—the exception again being the boy with a man instructor if the instructor so prefers. But there are men who refuse the title in class, choosing plain ordinary Professor Brown, Dean Brown, or just ordinary Mr. Brown instead.

Children should be taught never to give the reply direct without an accompanying word or remark of courtesy. It sounds priggish for "Yes, Mr. Brown" or "Yes, Mr. Brown" to be kept up for any length of time. One time I visited in a house where I thought the parrot like "Yes, Mother" of the children would drive me crazy. "Yes, I think so," or "Yes, I did," "Yes, I feel cold," would have been a pleasant relief once in a while. But, "Yes, Mother" is absolutely correct, of course.

Ma'am is a contraction of Madam and was used formerly as a term of respect. Even official service has dropped it now in better class homes. One hears only "Yes, Madam," which is correct. The ma'am was always an ungraceful word. I think we can safely call it obsolete.

Amarillo Now Clammers for Mary's Return

Amarillo, Texas.—(UP)—Mary Garden's announced intention of appearing in Amarillo in another concert has struck a popular chord with business men of this Panhandle town and already the "Welcome" sign has been hung up for her.

Emil F. Myers, chairman of the committee which brought the Chicago Civic Opera to Amarillo in a performance of "Thais" telegraphed the prima donna an invitation to return within the next two weeks at her own price.

"You could pack your auditorium and we would give you the biggest demonstration ever accorded an artist in Texas," Myers telegram said. "We can and will control this fellow Howe. We will see to it that his newspaper extends to you every possible courtesy, or else."

But Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo Globe News, may not be so easily subdued. Howe's criticism of Mary Garden's recent performance in Thais is responsible for the controversy which has gripped the fancy of music lovers.

"The public is funny," said Howe. "People who said Mary Garden was terrible in Thais, are now clamoring for her return. Naturally I will be courteous but I warn them if she again totters as she did when I saw her in Thais I'll repeat the statement."

The WOMAN'S DAY
By ALLENE J. JONES

For over six months Miss Nellie Vedder, a student in the University of Chicago, got meals three times a day, washed dishes three times a day, and did all the orthodox "red-ding up" while one assistant held a stop-watch and another counted her movements, as she tried various methods.

When the six months were up she wrote a thesis about it, aimed to show that most, if not all housewives since the day of Eve, had wasted millions of yards of energy and time, all told, by their hit-and-miss methods in domestic duties.

Miss Vedder's thesis discussed three methods of table setting, dishwashing and general "redding up." The slowest method requiring 38 minutes, 8 seconds and 1954 motions for a day's worth of dishes in the average family of four, the fastest requiring only 22 minutes, 31 seconds, and 1015 motions.

THE BETTER WAY

While the public has not as yet been taken into real confidence as to the difference in the methods, it is revealed that for the housewife who insists on "doing" the dishes after each meal, though the author implies that she really thinks the once-a-day method is most efficient, the preferable process is to have all the dishes passed at the end of the meal to mama, who scrapes them as she places them on a tea-tray at her right. They are then rolled into the kitchen, given a rapid cold rinse, washed under the tap in the hot water, placed in a wire drained with hot rinsing water poured over them and then steam-dried. Miss Vedder intimates that "wiping the dishes" is as archaic as making bread or sausage.

Now, harmless and innocent as this treatise seems, one can imagine no more brilliant scarlet flag waved in the faces of womankind, for if there's one thing which the mass of women resent it's any other woman's intimation that she knows more about how housewifely duties should be performed than does she.

I know a certain daughter, for several years to convert her mother to the theory of a dish drainer as simpler and more sanitary than "drying" with a towel, and nothing in the bosom of the family precipitates such quarreling.

I know a mother-in-law who doesn't speak to her son-in-law because he essayed to tell her daughter that certain of her housekeeping methods handed on as traditions from her mother were all wrong, mostly because they were dissimilar from certain methods of his own mother.

made, too, at the idea of a scientific collegate thesis on the subject of dishwashing. Queerly enough, as many wise cracks will be made by women who like to pretend that they are engaged in a serious and noble profession as by men who have an idea that domestic gimmerackery is nothing much than a sweet all-day sucker.

Which is exactly why there are more wasted motions in the job domestic today than in any other. Women themselves have done more to hamper the same advance in substitutes for drudgery than has been made in the outside-the-home realm than anyone else.

Sometimes one wonders if subconsciously it isn't a whole-hearted wifely attempt to make the world cling to the idea that domestic drudgery is just that and nothing more, so that wifely rewards and appreciations will be greater than if it is generally accepted that they don't have a part in the creation of law, the obedience to law, and the selection of officials and methods for its enforcement.

Finally, I wish to again reiterate that the problem of law enforcement is not alone a function or business of government. If law can be upheld only by enforcement officers, then our scheme of government is at an end. Every citizen has a personal duty in it—the duty to order his own actions, to so weigh the effect of his example, that his conduct shall be a positive force in his community with respect to the law.

I have no criticism to make of the American press. I greatly admire its independence and its courage. I taken in hand early enough to have averted the sufferings they have had to undergo as a result of mismanagement.

My message to the public would therefore be: Do not take a bunion lightly. It may be that a change of shoe will do the trick. It may, however, be a matter of much more serious import, and by getting at it early, the patient may be saved untold suffering.

In severe cases on bunions, I have heard many patients express fear of operative interferences. It is well for them to know that an operation, if indicated, is a simple one, provided the surgeon who undertakes it has had the proper training for doing his work.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 21.

The Golden Text was, "Walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savour" (Ephesians 5:2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are become new" (1 Cor. 5:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "He to whom the arm of the Lord is revealed will believe our report, and rise into newness of life with regeneration. This is having part in the atonement; this is the understanding, in which Jesus suffered and triumphed" (p. 24).

This is real Heato weather. If you feel trouble you get a box of Heato.

DEAR FRIENDS:

They've been having quite a time here at the plant with a party dress that came in a day or two ago. It was so badly soiled that it could hardly be cleaned—at least, cleaned the way the boss wants it to be.

It doesn't pay to allow a dress to become too badly soiled. Sometimes it won't "come back," as Mr. Weiss says.

The better way is to send the dress in more frequently. In that way those perspiration stains won't become permanent.

That's just a suggestion, of course.

OBEEDIENCE TO AND ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS MOST VITAL QUESTION BEFORE AMERICAN PEOPLE HOOVER DECLARES

science, whether flippancy is a useful or even legitimate device in such discussions. I do not believe it is. Its effect is as misleading and as distorting of public conscience as deliberate misrepresentation. Not clarification, but confusion of issues arises from it.

Our people for many years have been intensely absorbed in business, in the astonishing upbuilding of a great country, and we have attempted to specialize in our occupations, to strive to achieve in our own specialties and to respect competency of others in theirs. Unconsciously, we have carried this psychology into our state of mind toward government. We tend to regard the making of laws and their administration as a function of a group of specialists in government whom we hire for this purpose and whom we call public servants. After hiring them it is our purpose casually to review their actions, to accept those which we approve, and to reject the rest.

Destructive Attitude
This attitude of mind is destructive of self-government, for self-government is predicated upon the fact that every responsible citizen will take his part in the creation of law, the obedience to law, and the selection of officials and methods for its enforcement.

And in conclusion let me recall an oft-repeated word from Abraham Lincoln, whose invisible presence lives hourly at the very desk and in the very halls which it is my honor to occupy:

"Let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the character of his own and his children's liberty. Let reverence for the laws be breathed to every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be taught in the schools, in seminaries, in colleges. Let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in the legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation, and let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions sacrifice unceasingly upon its altar."

PASTOR OF GRACE CHURCH SENT TO FREEPORT POST

Rev. Frank Brandteller Transferred by Bishop Sunday

The Illinois Conference of the Evangelical Church which convened at Freeport during last week closed its 85th annual session Sunday afternoon with the reading of the appointments of the ministers by the presiding officer, Bishop L. H. Seager, D. D. The local pastor of the Grace Evangelical church is among those who were changed to other fields. During the six years of Rev. Frank Brandteller's pastorate here the work has been carried on in a very efficient way. The church as well as the Sunday school has made very substantial increases, so that at present the membership in each is the largest in the history of the church.

Rev. Brandteller was stationed to the Trinity Evangelical church in Freeport, and Rev. A. M. D. Shaffer of Shannon is the newly appointed pastor of the local church. A number of changes made on the Freeport District which may be of interest to some of The Telegraph's readers are:

WHAT THE FLAME MEANS.

Whenever people feel some great truth that they cannot quite put into words, they clothe it in symbol. The deeper their feeling is, the more striking and effective the symbol becomes.

A few days ago American newspapers got photographs of the funeral of Marshal Foch. They were unusual pictures; and they showed how a deep belief of the French—a belief that is shared by men and women of all nations—has sought expression in a mystic, poetic symbol.

The flower-covered casket of Foch lay beneath the great Arc de Triomphe. The blackness of night was the background. By the casket flickered torches; and, in the foreground, was the bright, glowing "eternal flame" that burns without ceasing at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

This eternal flame is more than a bit of fire that burns on a shrine of patriotism. It stands for something that is not often put into words. Even the body of a marshal of France, for the moment, took a secondary place beside it. It was greater than Foch, greater than any individual man.

Back of it there are all armies that marched to war between 1914 and 1918; all the armies, and all the prayers and tears and arches and hopes that went with them. The flame burns for them—a symbol of the race's profound belief that in spite of all its senseless fury, its destruction, its insane violence and its frightful cost, the great war really meant something and really accomplished something, and was not simply an appalling blunder in which all the sacrifices were in vain.

Sometimes it is hard to understand why people everywhere did not rise up after the war and fling all their military machines on the junk pile. Surely, if anything could ever convince the race that war is an insane folly, the World War should have done it. It would have been only natural if the people of all nations had declared:

"No matter what may happen, we will never, never let ourselves in for anything like that again. Nothing on earth is worth it. We will find some better way of settling things."

But they did not. Marshal Foch, greatest commander of the greatest war in history, goes to his grave mourned by millions. His body lies by the eternal flame; and all of France, saluting reverently, renews the kind of emotion that makes war possible.

What does it mean, then? Simply this: that although the race may be blind and stupid, it is also indomitable. It has a determination and an endurance that can, in time, conquer everything.

If you want a thing hard enough, you get it. And if the people of the earth are determined enough to prove that the World War was not utterly useless—as the eternal flame would indicate—their determination, some day, will be justified.

AN ORIGINAL THIEF.

One would think that the business of thievery no longer offered any chance for originality. Surely, in all the years that men have been stealing things, everything stealable had already been stolen at some time or other.

But in Biddeford, Me., the other day a truly original thief popped up. He went to a public park and stole eight Civil War cannon balls, weighing 100 pounds each, which had rested in a neat, ornamental little pyramid for something like 40 years.

What on earth any man would want with eight 100-pound spheres of iron is hard to tell. And how any thief would lug such trophies away with him is another matter that piques the imagination. The Biddeford thief, at any rate, was original. He managed to steal something that nobody had ever thought of stealing before.

Secretary Stimson has sent for "Old Soak," his parrot which suffered loneliness when left in the Philippines. Maybe the bird could be trained to be a White House spokesman.

Washington must be a noisy city. It has become quite characteristic of recent dispatches to describe the capital "buzzing" over this rumor and that.

The head of the house of course is the one who gets up to put a piece of cardboard in the window to keep it from rattling because the noise annoys the better half.

The day is at hand when repair gangs set out to tear up any good stretches of pavement they can find.

Forty aldermen from Chicago took a short vacation in Excelsior Springs recently. There was quite a lot of construction work going on at the time and the officials whiled away the time watching and listening to the riveters.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNOCK

The Goofygoo was tired, I guess. At least he seemed in much distress. Perhaps that's why he perched upon the great big crescent moon. The Tinymites were all surprised, and startled when they realized just where they were. One said, "We're in for trouble pretty soon."

"We have no business parking here. The moon will get real mad, I fear. Let's start to move on right away, so we'll be safe and sound. The Goofygoo may be tired out, but anyway, I have no doubt that he, at least, can take us down and land us on the ground."

"Hey!" Wait a minute," cried the moon. "You'll know me better, pretty soon, and find out that I'm friendly. Send your Goofygoo away. While he flies nearby in the air, I'll show and tell you things real rare. And so the bird flew off, while all the Tinymites stayed to play."

Then Scouty said, "Say, Mister

Moon, I'll get real dizzy pretty soon. We seem so very high up here, I'm scared that I will fall." The moon replied, "You'll be all right. Just stick to me, and hang on tight. There really is no danger in your being here at all."

And then he pointed to afar and said, "Here comes the big North star." And, sure enough, the star came up and shouted, "Howdy do! I've heard about you Tinymites, who travel round to see the sights. In just a minute I will spread the milky way for you."

He waved a pall; a monstrous thing, and then gave it a sudden fling. Out flew a brilliant stream of stars where all the bunch could see. It filled the Tinymites with awe, 'cause 'twas the milky way they saw. While streaking 'cross the sky, it was as pretty as could be.

(The Tinymites have more adventures in the sky in the next story.)

QUOTATIONS

"I have hardly spoken of independence since I came back from the United States. This is because I don't believe in fighting when we have no one to fight with."

—President Quezon of the Senate, Philippine Islands.

"Now that war has become a matter of industries, we are the best prepared nation in the world. This brings us a frightful responsibility to do straight thinking on the subject."

—Maj.-Gen. John F. O'Ryan, U. S. A., retired, former commander 27th Division, A. E. F.

"I believe that intoxicating liquor sold as a beverage causes more injury than war, pestilence or famine."

—Albert C. Saunders, premier of Prince Edward Island, Canada.

"The Great Lakes and St. Lawrence river extend the generous hand of invitation to us. They fairly beseech us to co-operate in extending the most trivial works that will convert them into a new Mediterranean for the newer continent."

—James W. Good, secretary of war.

"Happiness is a by-product of self-fulfillment, which is the most important thing in the world."

—Arnold Bennett, British author.

"It is flying to such we must look to stir in the youth of today the old pioneer spirit. That is why my scheme for extending our air resources is based so largely on the child. When they grow up aeroplanes will be more common than motor cars, and fear of the air will have been banished."

—Sir Alan Cobham, British flyer.

"My pet peeve is to be obliged to listen to a man soloist sing 'Kiss Me Again.'"

—The Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones, Detroit.

"I absolutely will not shoot off my mouth about my new job."

—Col. Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state.

THE SCOREBOARD

BY UNITED PRESS

Yesterday's hero: Guy Bush, Chicago Cubs' pitcher who let the St. Louis Cardinals down with three hits, the Windy City nine winning, 4 to 0. Rogers Hornsby smashed out four hits—two doubles and two singles—in four trips.

The Brooklyn Robins dropped their fifth straight game to the Philadelphia Phillies, 4 to 1, the game being halted by rain at the end of the seventh. To make matters worse, Davy Bancroft was injured in fielding practice and was unable to play.

The Philadelphia Athletics handed the New York Yankees their first defeat of the year, 7 to 4, in a five inning game stopped by rain. Lefty Grove, who lost six out of seven games to the Yankees last season, was the winning pitcher and Henry Johnson, who beat the Athletics in four out of five games, was the losing pitcher.

Collecting twenty-one hits the Detroit Tigers beat the St. Louis Browns, 16 to 9. Dale Alexander, rookie Detroit first baseman, and Harry Heilmann, veteran outfielder, each drove in four runs.

Rain prevented all other games.

McCarty Not Afraid of Eastern Invasion

Chicago, April 22—(AP)—For the first time since he picked up the managerial reins of the Cubs, Joe McCarthy does not fear an eastern invasion.

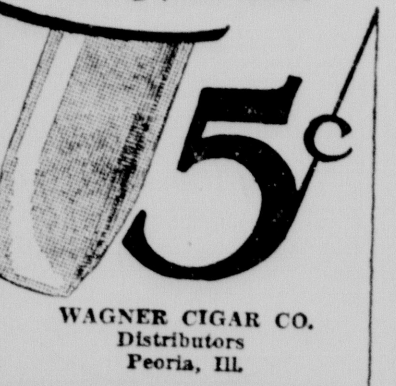

"We shove off on our first invasion of the east tomorrow night and this time I'm not afraid of a losing jinx because we've got the pitchers," McCarthy said. "Just look at our record in four games against the Pirates and Cardinals. They got just 20 hits in those games or an average of 163 combined. Everyone knows we have the hitters."

For the past three seasons, the Cubs have lost the pennant in the east.

Despite inclement weather, the Cubs have made a running start toward a new National League attendance.

Modern Home Movement Has Civic Approval

PROPERTY VALUES GROW WITH IMPROVEMENTS

Modernization Pays Dividends in Comfort

It goes without saying that a city or town is judged largely by the appearance of its homes. The stranger who drives through the streets passes summary judgment on the town based almost entirely on what he sees. The town is good or bad, depending on whether the residences are modern or antiquated in appearance.

That is just one aspect of the problem of modernization that is engaging the attention of the public at the present time. Civic pride demands that the city shall be comprised of smart appearing homes. The liveliness and progressiveness of the community from the outsiders' viewpoint depends largely on appearance.

Not only this but the desirability of living in a certain section of a town is based largely on the appearance of the homes in that vicinity. The better part of town is usually that part which can boast of the newer residences.

Desirability Measures Values.

The desirability of a house is in a large degree a measure of its value. This desirability depends not only on its external appearance but also on the arrangement of the interior, the method of heating, the type of plumbing, the style of electrical fixtures, the choice of painting and decorating. If the home is up-to-date in these respects, it carries a higher value. If it is not modern, no matter how strong and substantially built, no matter how sturdy its construction, its intrinsic value is low. The home owner with a modern appearing residence can command a decidedly higher price than his neighbor next door whose home is old in design and layout.

And he can sell this modern residence in a slow market for these reasons.

Property value depends largely on the type of homes in the locality. The modernization of a residence will add value, not only to the house, itself, but also to property near it. This movement extended to a neighborhood will increase property value by ten or twenty per cent.

A Good Business Proposition. Modernizing a residence is a good business proposition. It lifts the house from the undesirable into the desirable classification. Old and undesirable property is good only for a first mortgage loan of less than 25% its value.

On the other hand the same property modernized becomes good for a first mortgage loan of 50 per cent of its value.

The appraiser of the house judges largely by its appearance. He estimates its value not from the soundness of its timbers or the value of good workmanship that was put into it by the early building contractor, but by the outside lines, the floors, the plumbing, the light fixtures and other visible evidences of up-to-date construction. Such an estimate may seem superficial but it is based largely on the proposition of a quick sale. The appraiser is basing his figures on the reaction of a possible purchaser. He knows that the average purchaser of a home will buy sooner if the residence has the elements of modernization.

Hence the desirability of investing dollars and cents on modernizing program has a fundamental element of gain. The owner not only enjoys greater comforts and beauty but he also secures a greater value in his home for the money invested.

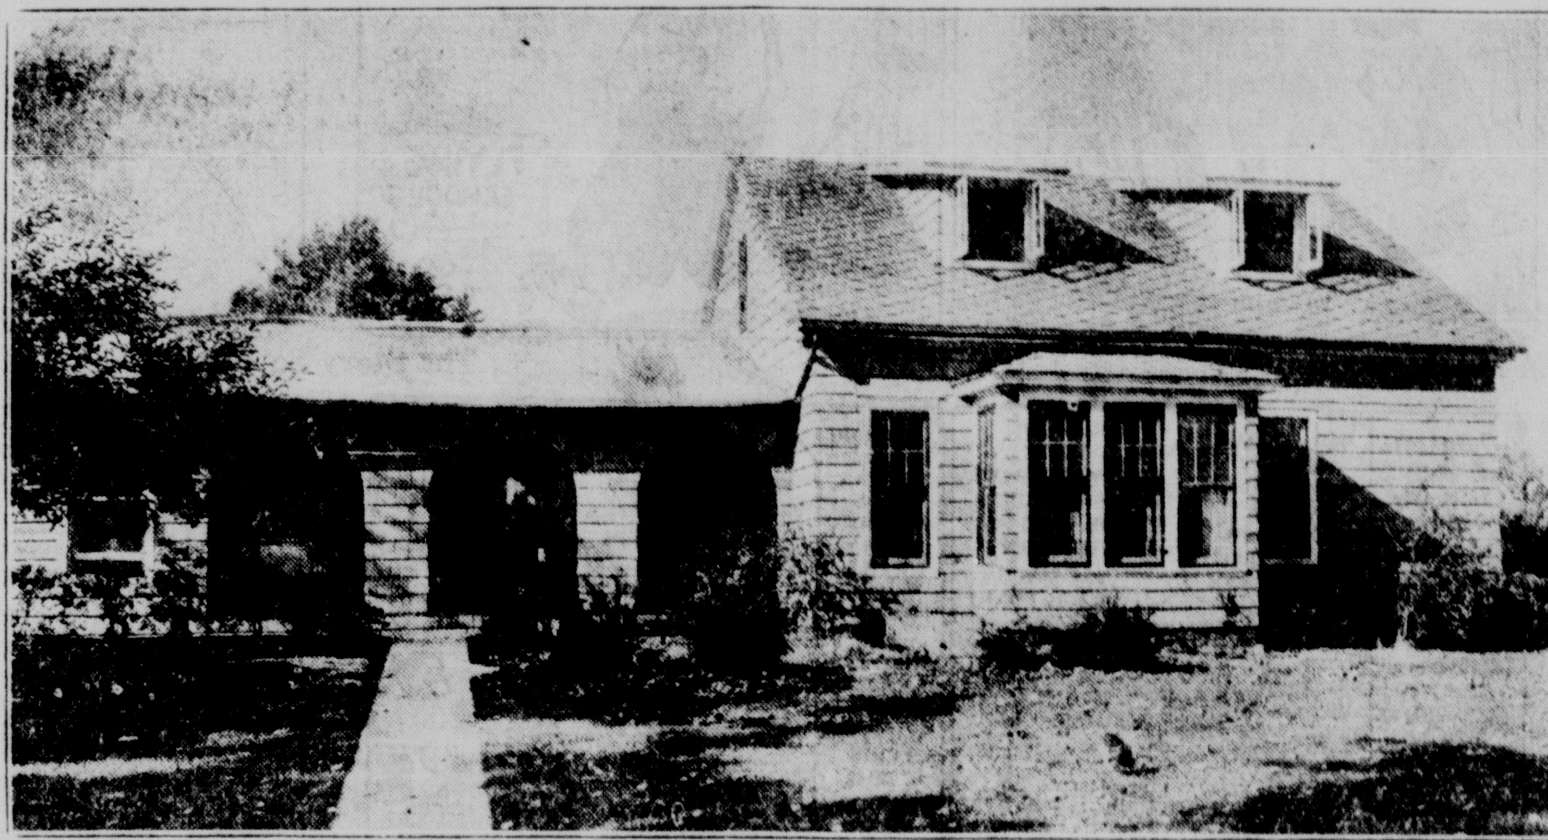

Modernization Brings New Comforts.

That's the masculine side of the picture. The man thinks of a better investment. Terms of value mean much to him. The woman, on the other hand, desires a modern home because of pride of possession, beauty of surroundings, comfort and utility.

Modernization brings new living comforts. Old fashioned stoves or antiquated types of heating plants are relegated to the background in favor of newer, modern methods of heating. Ugly, dusty-looking floors give way to beautiful hardwood, highly polished or waxed and easy to clean. Dingy electrical fixtures are superseded by modern fixtures and an abundance of electrical outlets, conveniently located to facilitate the use of the varied electrical appliances that ease the housewife's burden.

Modernization, you see, is more than a matter of the exterior lines of the house. It goes deep into the lives of the occupants. It touches them in every phase of their existence. It adds to the richness and fullness of their life.

An Old House Made New and Modern

This smart looking residence shows the magic touch of modernization. Built forty years ago, it has been clothed in the simple effective lines of today. A far cry from its former appearance as depicted below.

YOUR COLD HOUSE MAY BE DUE TO POOR CONSTRUCTION

Your Heating Plant May Be Doing a Good Job With Great Difficulties.

If you had trouble in heating your house during the past winter, it is unfair to blame the cause on the heating plant without making a thorough, impartial investigation to see if other factors enter to aid in giving you a cold home.

The heating plant of a residence, if properly installed, should give reliable, even heat during the coldest of weather.

When your home is subjected to constant cold, check not only into the heating plant but also the windows, the floors and the insulating of the walls. Any of these may be at fault and entirely to blame for those high fuel bills.

The windows may be loose, warped or shrunken. Loose windows allow the ready entrance of cold air and the house on the windward side will generally be cold and drafty if the entrance of air through the windows is permitted. The remedy may be weather-stripping, fitting storm windows or replacing the framing.

Poor floors often allow cold air to creep in thus disturbing the heating arrangements and causing the fuel bills to mount to an unreasonable figure. Poor floors should be replaced by well seasoned hard wood. Properly installed by an experienced builder using good material, your floors should be practically airtight and cold resisting.

BEAUTIFUL RESIDENCE MADE FROM OLD WORN-OUT HOUSE

What modernization means when applied to the exterior of a house is aptly illustrated by the views on this page.

These cuts show more clearly than any description the radical improvement which takes place when a skilled architect or experienced contractor assumes the problem of improving a piece of property.

The illustration to the left shows a home that for sheer beauty of lines can seldom be surpassed. It is a home that any man or woman would be proud to own. It shows taste, refinement and an artistic appreciation of the value of simple lines.

Once an Eye-sore. Yet this residence grew from the drab, depecked, lifeless husk of a house shown below. Before the magic of modernization touched it, the house was one to be avoided. It was an eye-sore of the neighborhood, a shack rather than a dwelling. A person with any pretensions to social respect would shun living in such a place.

Notice how cleverly the builder has applied his art to the old shell. These before and after pictures show how simple it was to transform the ugly duck house into the beautiful swan home.

The wooden shingles of the roof were replaced by asbestos shingles which will last the life of the dwelling. Two dormer windows side by side now pierce each slope of the roof of the main structure, allowing the old time attic to be transformed into liveable, cheerful sleeping chambers. Each dormer contains small-paned casement windows with out-flung ventilators, welcoming the wily breeze during the hot summer days and night.

Below the old wooden siding has been torn away and wooden shingles substituted. The bay of windows has been left but new counter-weighted sash small panes above replaces the warped and battered windows of previous years. The broken cellar door slanting over a damp, ugly hole has been discarded and concrete steps now lead below to a door entering a rejuvenated basement. A front porch facing the street to the right was torn away and a stoop of Dutch design built in its stead.

Perhaps the greatest change to be noticed is in the treatment of the wing leading from the main structure. The ugly wooden enclosure of the side porch off the dining room has been torn away, three broad arches with shingle columns gracefully dividing the opening. The dining room now becomes one of the most cheerful rooms of the dwelling.

This ugly shell of a house was the eye-sore of the neighborhood, yet was easily transformed into the beautiful dwelling pictured at the top. No house is hopeless when an experienced architect or contractor is given full sway.

LIKE THOUSAND NEEDLES IN ARM; NEURITIS AWFUL

Mrs. Conover Tells How Amazing Gly-Cas Changed Her Into Person Free from All Pain.

"I had a terrible case of neuritis when a friend told me about Gly-Cas and declared she knew it was a 'sure cure' for my troubles and I certainly do praise this medicine myself now," Mrs. May Conover, widely-known dressmaker of 403 1/2 N. Main St., Bloomington, Ill., recently said of this famous remedy which has been declared to be the greatest combination of Nature's pure roots and herbs ever offered suffering humanity.

MRS. CONOVER.

"It was awful the way I'd suffered with neuritis," she continued. "My hands were so stiff I could hardly open or close them and misery that ran all through my arms felt like thousands of needles were sticking into me all the time. I was seriously handicapped in my work, sometimes couldn't sew at all and knew I had to get rid of the neuritis but how to do it was another matter as everything I tried failed to help me and I was getting worse. But after all the praise of my friend for Gly-Cas I lost no time in getting it and before finishing the second box of this medicine the awful stiffness and pains which had felt like thousands of needles in my arms, had completely left me. I haven't a pain in my hands, arms or shoulders—all the neuritis misery is gone—and can tell you truthfully that Gly-Cas has changed me from a discouraged miserable condition into a person free from pains, and I surely praise this medicine to other sufferers now."

Gly-Cas is sold in Dixon at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy, 308 Franklin Grove, G. S. Ives; Polo, C. R. Clothier; Ashton, G. R. Charters; Amboy, Aschenbrenner Drug; Compton, W. H. Hills; Rockville, Barker & Sullivan and Leaching druggists in all surrounding towns.—Adv.

THIS HAS HAPPENED.

MILDRED LAWRENCE meets STEPHEN ARMITAGE when he rescues her fox fur from a thief. Their friendship grows until PAMELA, MILDRED's daughter, of Mildred's employer, tries to lure him away from her. HUCK CONNOR becomes infatuated with Pamela and she plays with both men. Her brother, HAROLD, is in love with Mildred, who tries to keep him from gambling with Huck's crowd.

Mildred has to stay home a week because of an accident to her mother. Both men call on her and when Pamela finds out she tells Stephen that Mildred is trying to marry Harold for his money. He defends her and Pamela cables her father to discharge her. Harold tries to have Mildred reinstated, but to no avail. Pamela succeeds in poisoning Stephen's mind against Mildred and the latter faces dreary days in search of work.

Huck becomes so insistent that Pamela plans to break with him. So she snubs him in Stephen's presence and when he objects tells him that she and Stephen are engaged. Stephen protests when they are alone and she says that was the only way she could get rid of Huck. She pleads with him to confirm the engagement. Meanwhile, Huck summons Harold and commands him to prevent Pamela's marriage. Stephen under fear of exposure concerning a forged check, Harold tells him not to force Pamela and Huck plans to dispose of Stephen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIV

THE day after the meeting of Huck with Lefty Flint and Duke Brogan in the latter's office, Lefty entered the Mettle Agency to look over the cars on display there.

He seemed most interested in a snappy sports model that occupied the most prominent window space, but when a salesman approached and started to "sell" the car to him he curtly explained that he was "just lookin' it over."

But as he continued to "look it over" for more than a few minutes Stephen came up to him and casually mentioned a few hidden merits of the model.

Lefty's interest grew and before he left he asked about a road test. Stephen consulted the list of names of persons desiring to have the car demonstrated on the road and told Lefty he could take him out the following Wednesday.

"All right, put me down," Lefty said importantly, "but listen, brother, I want a test of the car. I'm gonna buy, see."

Stephen shook his head. "Sorry," he said. "We don't use all our cars for demonstration. But the sports model you're interested in is from stock, same as the car we'll take out."

Lefty bristled. "Nothin' doin'. I ain't lookin' for no free ride. I want a car, see. If that baby in the window will go I'll take her, but she's gotta go, see." He looked at Stephen and smiled confidentially. "I gotta step fast in my business sometimes."

Stephen returned his look with a knowingly raised eyebrow. "Ah," he said and there was an inquiring inflection in the monosyllable.

"Sure," Lefty said and managed to assume a pompous air. "Need any good stuff? Right over from Canada."

"Thanks, I'm well stocked up," Stephen lied to avoid being persuaded into buying anything from his customer.

"Well, here's my card," Lefty said good-naturedly. "Come around if I can do anything for you. Now how about that road test next Wednesday?"

STEPHEN took the card he proffered and saw in a glance that

Stephen's face was now a nice, healthy red. "That was a kid idea," he mumbled.

It bore an address and telephone number as well as the name in large lettering.

"I'll see what I can do for you, Mr. Flint," he said pleasantly. "You're sure that's the car you want?"

"If she can hit a hundred," "She'll do more," Stephen replied emphatically.

"All right. Show me." After he was gone Stephen went to Mr. Mettle and told him he had a "sale in the bag if he could take out the car the customer wanted."

"Who is he?" Mr. Mettle snapped. He was an impatient man, given to small encouragement of his salesmen when they asked for special privileges.

"He's a bootlegger," Stephen answered promptly.

"H'm. Know anything about him?" "Not a thing, sir. He just dropped in. Fell for that sports model in the window. But it looks like a sale. Only he won't be satisfied with the usual demonstration."

"Tell him it's the same motor?" "Of course."

"Well," Mr. Mettle paused and put down the pen with which he had been signing letters when Stephen came in. "I don't know whether to trust your judgment or not, Armitage. I . . . er . . . don't altogether approve of your selling methods."

Stephen flushed. "You mean my way of making contacts?" he asked. Mr. Mettle inclined his head with out dropping his eyes. Stephen hated that peering out from under lowered brows.

"In your case I think it's a risk," the manager said frankly. "If you had an income aside from your earnings here it would be different. But in the present circumstances your going about with the people to whom you desire to sell motor cars is a mistake. In my opinion, it is certain to lead you into trouble. I've learned that you're borrowing money from the other salesmen . . ."

"I've repaid them, except . . ."

But Mr. Mettle would not allow Stephen to break in before he had finished what he had to say.

"And I've been told," he went on, "that you spend a great deal of time at a certain club in Westchester. That alone must be quite a drain on your resources." He looked at Stephen as though he expected the young man to confess to some black magic to explain his association with Pamela's friends.

STEPHEN'S anger began to rise. "At any rate I'm not overdrawn here," he said shortly. "And in my opinion . . ."

"In your opinion," Mr. Mettle interjected, "that's just the trouble, Armitage. Your opinion; I don't trust it. It isn't sound."

Stephen's blood was hot now. "In that case," he began belligerently, but again his employer stopped him.

"No need to lose your temper," he said hastily. "Your sales record, I will admit, is better than the average. But it seems to me it might be even better than it is if your judgment didn't lead you into wasting so much time on prospects that don't appear to be very hot."

TWO VETERANS OF RING ON BOXING CARDS THIS WEEK

Several Prominent Boxers are Scheduled for Engagements

New York, April 22—(AP)—A glance over the national boxing schedule for this week brings back to mind that Jack Britton and Johnny Dundee, whose combined age totals 78 years, still are going strong. Britton, at 43, has been in the ring since 1904. He lost his world's welterweight title some years ago but still is able to outpoint men half his age. His opponent this week is Red Herring, Uta, N. Y., welterweight. They will meet in a ten-round match at Memphis tonight.

Dundee, who in his 17 years of fist activity has held the featherweight and junior lightweight championships, also jumps into action tonight, facing Eddie Kid Wolfe of Memphis, in a ten-round bout at New Orleans. Dundee, now 35 years old, has lost virtually all of his old time speed but still is a fair match—and sometimes more than a match—for younger foes.

Canzoneri To Fight
Another ex-champion, Tony Canzoneri, is the ace in the deck at Madison Square Garden this week. Although only 23, Canzoneri already has won and lost the featherweight title. He has been doing much of his recent battling with junior lightweight and he meets one of the best in that class at the Garden on Friday night—Sammy Dorfman, clever east sider.

Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sensation still unbeaten, should not have much difficulty with Vic Burrone of New York, in a ten rounder at the St. Nicholas Arena here tonight. The "Kid" won his last bout, against Bushy Graham, on a foul after taking a somewhat artistic lacing for six rounds.

George Courtney, the Oklahoma Cowboy, takes another step in his campaign for the light heavyweight championship, in Philadelphia tonight against Tom Kirby of Boston, whose specialty is an extremely irritating left jab.

On the Pacific Coast, Young Corbett, the welterweight contender, and Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, are the principal box office cards. Corbett meets Pete Miller at San Francisco tonight. Callahan may find Spug Myers a trifle hard to handle at Los Angeles tomorrow night.

Other bouts on the national card include:

TONIGHT:
At New York, Broadway Arena, Pete Sanstol, Norway, vs. Sammy Farber, New York, bantamweights, ten rounds; at Philadelphia, Bruce Flowers, New Orleans, vs. Bucky Boyle, Allentown, Pa., lightweight, ten rounds; at Cleveland, Stanislaus Loayza, Chile, vs. Frankie Chatterton, Cleveland, lightweight, 12 rounds, Johnny Grosso, New York, vs. Ross Rosales, Mexico, heavyweight, eight rounds.

TUESDAY:
At Chicago, Clyde Chastian, Texas, vs. Bobby Tracey, Buffalo, welterweights, ten rounds.

WEDNESDAY:
At Canton, O., K. O. Christner, Akron, vs. Jack McAuliffe, Detroit, heavyweight, ten rounds.

THURSDAY:
At Cincinnati, Jimmy Mahoney, Chicago, vs. Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., middleweights, 10 rounds.

FRIDAY:
At Boston, Bob Mills, Franklin, N. H., vs. Larry Rawson, Boston, heavyweight, ten rounds; at New York, Joey Lagrey, New York, vs. Izzy Grove, New York, welterweights, ten rounds, Earl Castro, Chicago, vs. Terry Roth, New York, featherweights, ten rounds.

GROVE FINALLY WINS FROM NEW YORK YANKEES

Accomplished Yesterday a Feat He Failed During Whole Season

BY WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Robert Moses Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics already in this very young season has won as many games from the Yankees as he won all last year. He was combed hard at times at the Stadium yesterday in the 7 to 4 triumph of the Mackmen but he accomplished what he failed to do six times last year.

It was the first Yankee Sunday at home in 1929 and 40,000 fans paid to see a game which was terminated by rain at the end of the fifth inning.

The Athletic success was all but clinched in the very first inning. Young Henry Johnson walked four of the Macks and permitted two others of their number to collect safe hits, before the veteran Tom Zachary, was summoned to the rescue. The net result was four large runs. Jimmy Dykes put on the finishing touches with a home run in the fifth with one Athletic aboard.

A Wild Contest.
Almost everything happened in the 16 to 9 triumph of the Tigers over the Browns at St. Louis. O'Rourke, Alexander and Whitehill hit home runs and Richardson, rookie shortstop of the Detroit team, permitted the Browns to work the hidden ball trick at his expense.

The rest to the American league program succumbed to the weather, as did the first scheduled championship game in Boston in the history of baseball. The Giants sat idly about the lobby of their hotel as a wind-driven storm of rain played about Braves' field.

Cubs Trounce Cards.
The National League Sabbath campaign was confined almost exclusively to the repulse of the Cardinals by the Cubs, 4 to 0, for the third Chicago victory in four attempts. Guy Bush led the National League champions down with three hits as Rogers Hornsby collected one more than that for his own personal account. Some 50,000 fans turned out for the festivities on Wrigley Field.

The flatbush Fusileers repaired to Flatbush yesterday for an unofficial home game with the Phillies obligingly won by a score of 4 to 1 in seven innings, with a rain-storm threatening every moment before it finally descended. More than 15,000 of the Flatbush faithful contributed to see the unhappy Robins lost their fifth straight.

With rain predicted throughout the eastern sector of the battle front, big league teams feared a further surrender to the double-header column today.

Drake and Penn to Stage Relays Next

Chicago, April 22—(AP)—Big Ten track and field stars today began grooming for the next opportunities for glory and records—the Drake and Penn relays.

Almost every member of the conference planned to send three or more athletes to the games, which will be held Friday and Saturday. Illinois, which won three of the relays at Kansas Saturday, will be represented by the same teams at Drake; Chicago will send its two-mile team to Drake and its medley and one-mile combinations to Penn.

INDIANA, PURDUE TWIN MENACE TO MICHIGAN'S TEAM

Threaten Wolverines' Title in Big Ten Baseball Race

Chicago, April 22—(AP)—Indiana and Purdue today stood out as a twin menace to Michigan's superiority in Big Ten baseball.

With the first series of games in the 1929 championship race in the score books, the Hoosiers had an edge in the struggle with three straight victories, while the heavy hitting Boilermakers had two.

Michigan, winner of the 1928 title, also rests in the undefeated column, having won its only game against Northwestern.

One upset was registered in the three-game card Saturday as Northwestern, a twice-defeated team, triumphed over Illinois, 3 to 1, at Urbana. It was Northwestern's first victory over the Illini on the diamond since 1915.

Indiana scored its third victory Saturday by defeating Chicago, 5 to 3, while Purdue handed Ohio State its third defeat, 9 to 4. The Michigan-Iowa game, scheduled for Saturday, was rained out.

Wisconsin and Minnesota, two of the dark horses of the championship race, open their campaigns this week. Eight games are on the schedule. They are:

Today and Tuesday, Minnesota at Ohio State, Wednesday, Illinois at Northwestern, Thursday, Illinois at Chicago; Thursday, Minnesota at Michigan; Saturday, Illinois at Ohio State, Wisconsin at Indiana and Chicago at Purdue.

New Jersey Copper Moving Up in Race

Effingham, Ill., April 22—(AP)—John Ealo, the New Jersey policeman, is moving up in the transcontinental derby.

Leading the field through wind and rain in the arduous 52.4 mile jog from Marshall, Illinois, to Effingham yesterday, Salo jumped from third to second place. Today, he was back three hours, 48 minutes and 10 seconds behind the leader, Pete Gavuzzi of England.

Salo covered the Marshall-Effingham lap in seven hours, 11 minutes and 45 seconds yesterday, jumping 46 minutes and 33 seconds ahead of Ed Gardner of Seattle, Wash., who had held second place. Gavuzzi tied for fourth place with Phillip Grandville of Hamilton, Ont., in the lap. Guisto Umek of Italy finished second yesterday in 7:15-15, while Paul Simpson of Burlington, N. C. was third.

Clark Griffith, who as a pitcher was positive that all umpires were biased and as a big league manager even more certain, umpired one ball game during his big league career. Incidentally, Griffith in that one game had an experience without precedent in the annals of baseball. We will let Griffith tell the story: "Did you ever hear of a manager reversing the decision of the umpire, said decision being in his favor? No? Well, let me tell you how it happened. "I was pitching for the Chicago Nationals at the time. The great Cap Anson was managing the club. The umpires for some reason failed to show up for the game and each team selected one of its players to substitute. I was the Chicago nominee and worked the bases. The visiting player selected called the balls and strikes.

"Early in the game there was a close play at first base in which I called the visiting runner out. I felt sure I had rendered the proper ruling but the entire visiting club thought to the contrary and as a man told me so. They threatened to forfeit the game, but I stood my ground. Imagine my surprise when I heard Cap Anson say:

"Let us quit kicking and start the game. It was a terrible decision, the man was safe and he is going to stay at first base."

"The game resumed with the man I had declared out, and who had gone to the bench taking his place at first. Later he scored and that run decided the game against Chicago. As an umpire, I am positive I held the record in having a decision in favor of the home team overruled by the manager of that club, thereby winning the game for the visitors. Tie that one if you can."

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH
The Little White Church on the Hill
Corner Highland & Sixth
A. G. Suechting, Pastor.

The second quarterly business meeting of the Immanuel Lutheran Congregation was held yesterday immediately after services. The reading of the last minutes showed progress in the church. The following had been received into membership: Mr. and Mrs. A. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. C. Hepp and Mr. Robinson.

Twenty more members were received into membership on Palm Sunday yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. R. Schwitt, Mrs. J. Emmert, Mrs. W. Lievan, Mrs. Chas. Scheffler and Mr. W. Giese were accepted.

The congregation expressed itself in favor of the pavement on Highland Avenue. The complete renovation of the basement was decided upon, including a new furnace, kitchen, etc. New windows are to be placed into the church auditorium and a sign-board on Galena Avenue bearing the name of the church. The services are to be in English every Sunday excepting the first Sunday of the month which is to be German.

FUNERALS A RARITY

Fayetteville, N. C.—(UP)—The Highland Presbyterian church here is 17 years old; yet only two funerals have been held from it since it was built in 1911. An elder of the church was buried from it in its early years and the edifice witnessed its second funeral the other day when a woman member of the congregation received last rites.

GIBSON OUTLINES U. S. ATTITUDE IN DISARMAMENT

Has Close Attention as He Addressed Geneva Parley Today

Geneva, April 22—(AP)—Hugh S. Gibson, American delegate to the preparatory disarmament conference in session here, announced today the United States was disposed to accept France's proposal of limitation of naval tonnage by categories. The offer, he said, was made in the hope of facilitating a general agreement on naval reduction.

Mr. Gibson's speech was made in an atmosphere of intense expectation and interest. He had every ear as he began, departing from his set speech to refer to the "hopeful" statement of Lord Cushendun, British delegate, last week.

"I desire to lay emphasis on the fact," he said, "that for us the essential thing is achievement of substantial results. Methods are of secondary importance."

To Consider Any Methods
"My government is disposed to give full and friendly consideration to any supplementary methods of limitation which may be calculated to make our proposals—the French thesis or any other—acceptable to other powers. If such a course appears desirable my government will be prepared to give consideration to a method of estimating equivalent naval values which will take account of other factors than displacement."

"In order to arrive at a basis of comparison in the case of categories in which there are marked variations as to unit characteristics it might be desirable in arriving at a formula for estimating equivalent tonnage to consider certain factors which produce these variations, such as age, unit of displacement, and calibre of guns."

Refers to Kellogg Pact.
Mr. Gibson asked the conference to bear in mind recent world changes, and he pointed out that most of the nations had bound themselves by solemn undertakings to renounce war as an instrument of national policy. After making this allusion to the Kellogg pact, he said:

"We believe that this agreement affirming humanity's will to peace will advance the cause of disarmament by removing fears which in past have constituted our principal obstacle. Recently it has been my privilege to discuss the general problem of disarmament at considerable length with President Hoover who has always been an ardent advocate of peace and good understanding. "I am in a position to realize how earnestly he feels that the pact for renunciation of war opens to us unprecedented opportunity for advancing disarmament—an opportunity which admits of no postponement." Mr. Gibson expressed his conviction that as long as the world approached the problem of disarmament upon the basis of old fears and old suspicions there remained little hope of results.

The French proposal is that which provides for assignment of a total tonnage to each nation, this total is to be divided among categories of ships by specified tonnages as a basis of discussion.

DEKING KILLING BEFORE SPECIAL JURY TUESDAY

States Attorney Says He Will Prosecute Any True Bills

Aurora, Ill., April 22—(AP)—A special session of the county grand jury has been called for tomorrow to investigate the killing of Mrs. Lillian DeKing during a prohibition raid on her home.

While the auspices under which the investigation will be conducted had prompted the state legislature to order an independent probe, State's Attorney George D. Carbery announced he would carry the investigation through and prosecute any indictments the jury returns.

Attorneys representing the DeKing family will assist Carbery in the investigation. They will have no official status, but Carbery has agreed to summon any witness they desire and ask them any questions the attorneys submit.

Eugene Boyd Fairchild, the dry informer who admitted he gave false information in swearing to the warrant on which the raid was based, was freed Saturday in Justice court on charges of perjury. His dismissal, which was based on a technicality in that the Police Magistrate, who issued the warrant failed to administer the oath properly, leaves Roy Smith, deputy sheriff who fired the fatal shot, the principal defendant in the case.

Smith is in an Elgin hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the leg inflicted by Gerald DeKing, 12-year-old son of the slain woman. Gerald fired at the deputy sheriff after his mother had been slain.

Carbery has promised to go into still another phase of the shooting before the grand jury—the case of investigating his own office.

CALL BY NUMBER ON YOUR TOLL CALLS IF YOU CAN

Last winter was an exceptionally trying one for telephone companies, due to the condition of the streets and the cold keeping people indoors, we were called upon to handle a very heavy traffic reaching at times as much as 25% above normal.

The increased traffic brought with it the usual complaints about busy lines and also many complaints from party line patrons who thought other parties on their lines were using the telephone entirely too much.
